

HEMATOLOGY ONCOLOGY CLINIC

A DIVISION OF AMERICAN ONCOLOGY PARTNERS, P.A.

Every patient deserves access to exceptional cancer
care, close to home.

Cancer treatment can be intense, complex and span many years. It can also be emotionally, physically and financially stressful. That's why it's critical for patients to obtain personalized care from a community oncology practice.

Discover cancer care delivered with hope, optimism
and compassion
at Hematology/Oncology Clinic.

Five reasons why Hematology/Oncology Clinic is your best choice for cancer care

1. Personalized care.

Cancer care is complex and often has to be customized to fit the needs of each individual patient. As a community clinic, our team can take the time to get to know each person and tailor treatment with support to meet their needs. Our clinic is independent and, unlike cancer doctors that are based at large hospitals, our doctors are not restricted when selecting treatment choices or physician consultants for our patients. We believe in assembling the best team available.

2. Care beyond chemo.

Cancer patients need more than chemotherapy, they need support for all aspects of treatment. We provide all types of oncology therapies including chemotherapy, biologic therapy, targeted therapy and immunotherapy. But our plans go further than just a drug choice. Our care management program expands our reach outside the physical walls of our office. Our specialized oncology care nurses assist patients with managing symptoms, providing nutritional guidance, social work support and financial counseling. We believe in treating the whole patient.

3. Affordable care.

In addition to providing a comfortable, personalized environment, community practices provide state-of-the-art care at lower costs to patients and their insurance providers. According to a 2016 Milliman study¹, patients who had their chemotherapy treatment delivered entirely in a hospital outpatient setting incurred between 34 and 42 percent higher costs than patients receiving identical chemotherapy in a community-based practice like ours. We believe that controlling costs while delivering cutting-edge treatments is paramount to ensuring best possible outcomes while reducing financial burdens.

4. Convenient locations.

Cancer patients need to be close to family, friends, and faith communities, and be able to continue with their daily lives. Our clinics are in convenient locations, with physicians and other providers, in-house laboratory, pathology, infusion and pharmacy services all under one roof.

5. Research.

Clinical research trials can provide certain patients with more treatment options. Most cancer drugs approved for use in the U.S. are studied in clinical trials conducted through community-based practices.

¹ Community Oncology Alliance "Fact Sheet: What is Community Oncology"
<https://www.communityoncology.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/08/What-is-Comm-Onc.pdf> 2017